Why is costing important?

- IHACPA's pricing advice reflects the cost of providing care
- Costing is the process of understanding what and how much resource are utilised by residents / clients when receiving specific services
- Costing enables us to understand variations in the costs of delivering care across different services and demographics
- This enables IHACPA to create a broad data set which forms the basis of its pricing advice

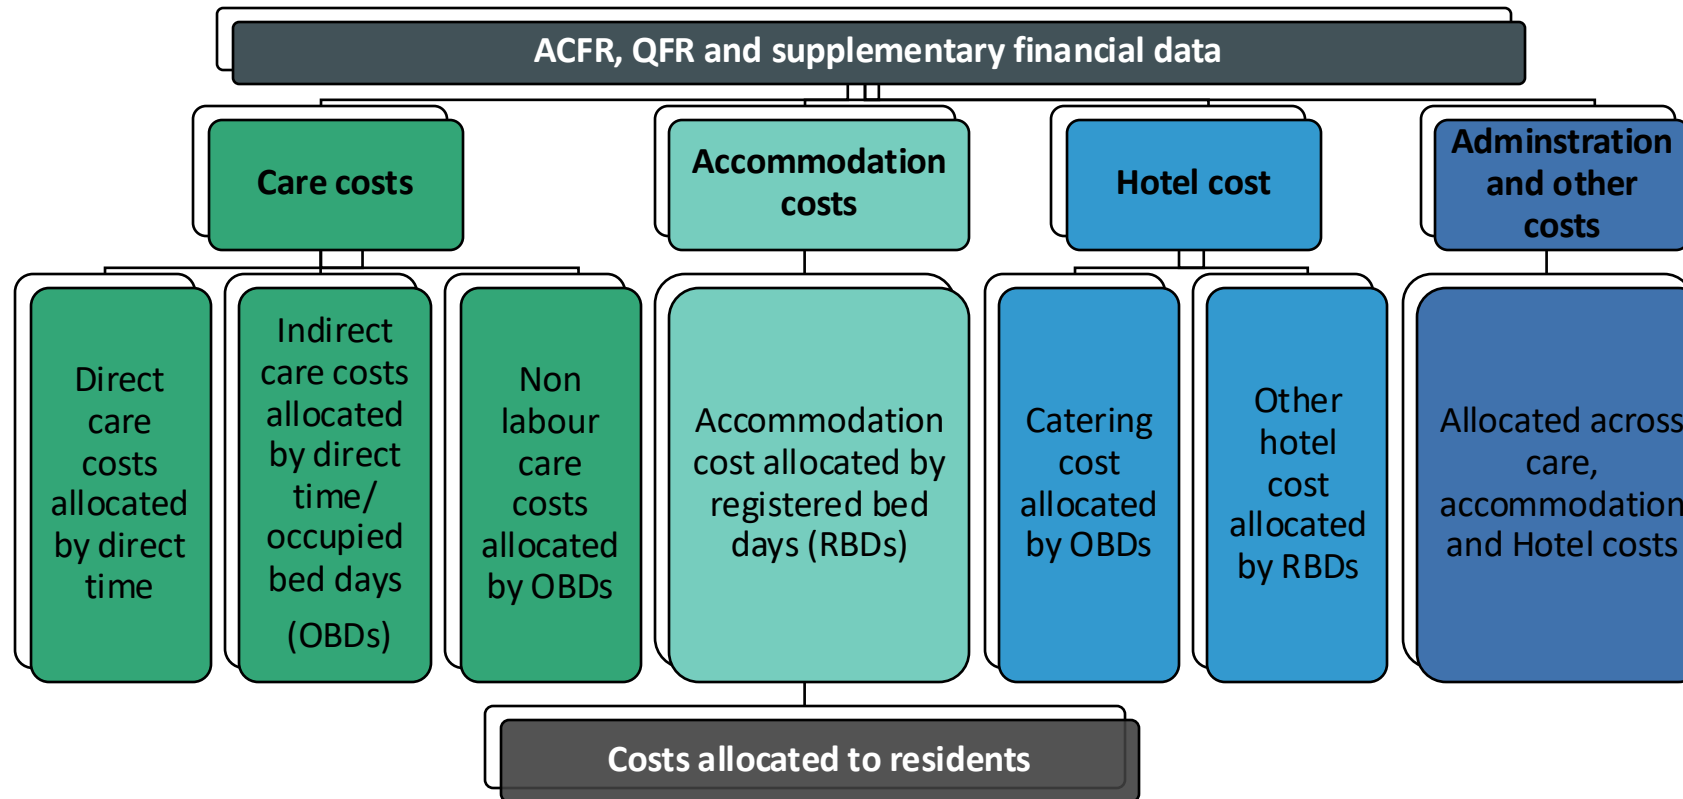

Aged Care Cost Collections

- IHACPA's costing studies and cost collections allow its pricing advice to reflect contemporary cost structures, changes in costs over time and care delivery models
