

Maggie Beer Foundation

*Creating an appetite
for life*

Our Key Programs

Supporting cooks and chefs to improve food, nutrition, and dining experiences

State & Territory Hubs

- Short online training
- Connects teams nationally
- Intro to online learning
- Builds digital confidence

Trainer Mentor Program

- 12- month tailored support
- On- site Chef Trainer coaching
- Builds confidence and skills
- Digital skills in everyday practice

The Gap in Aged Care Innovation

Kitchens risk being left behind

Check List

☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐

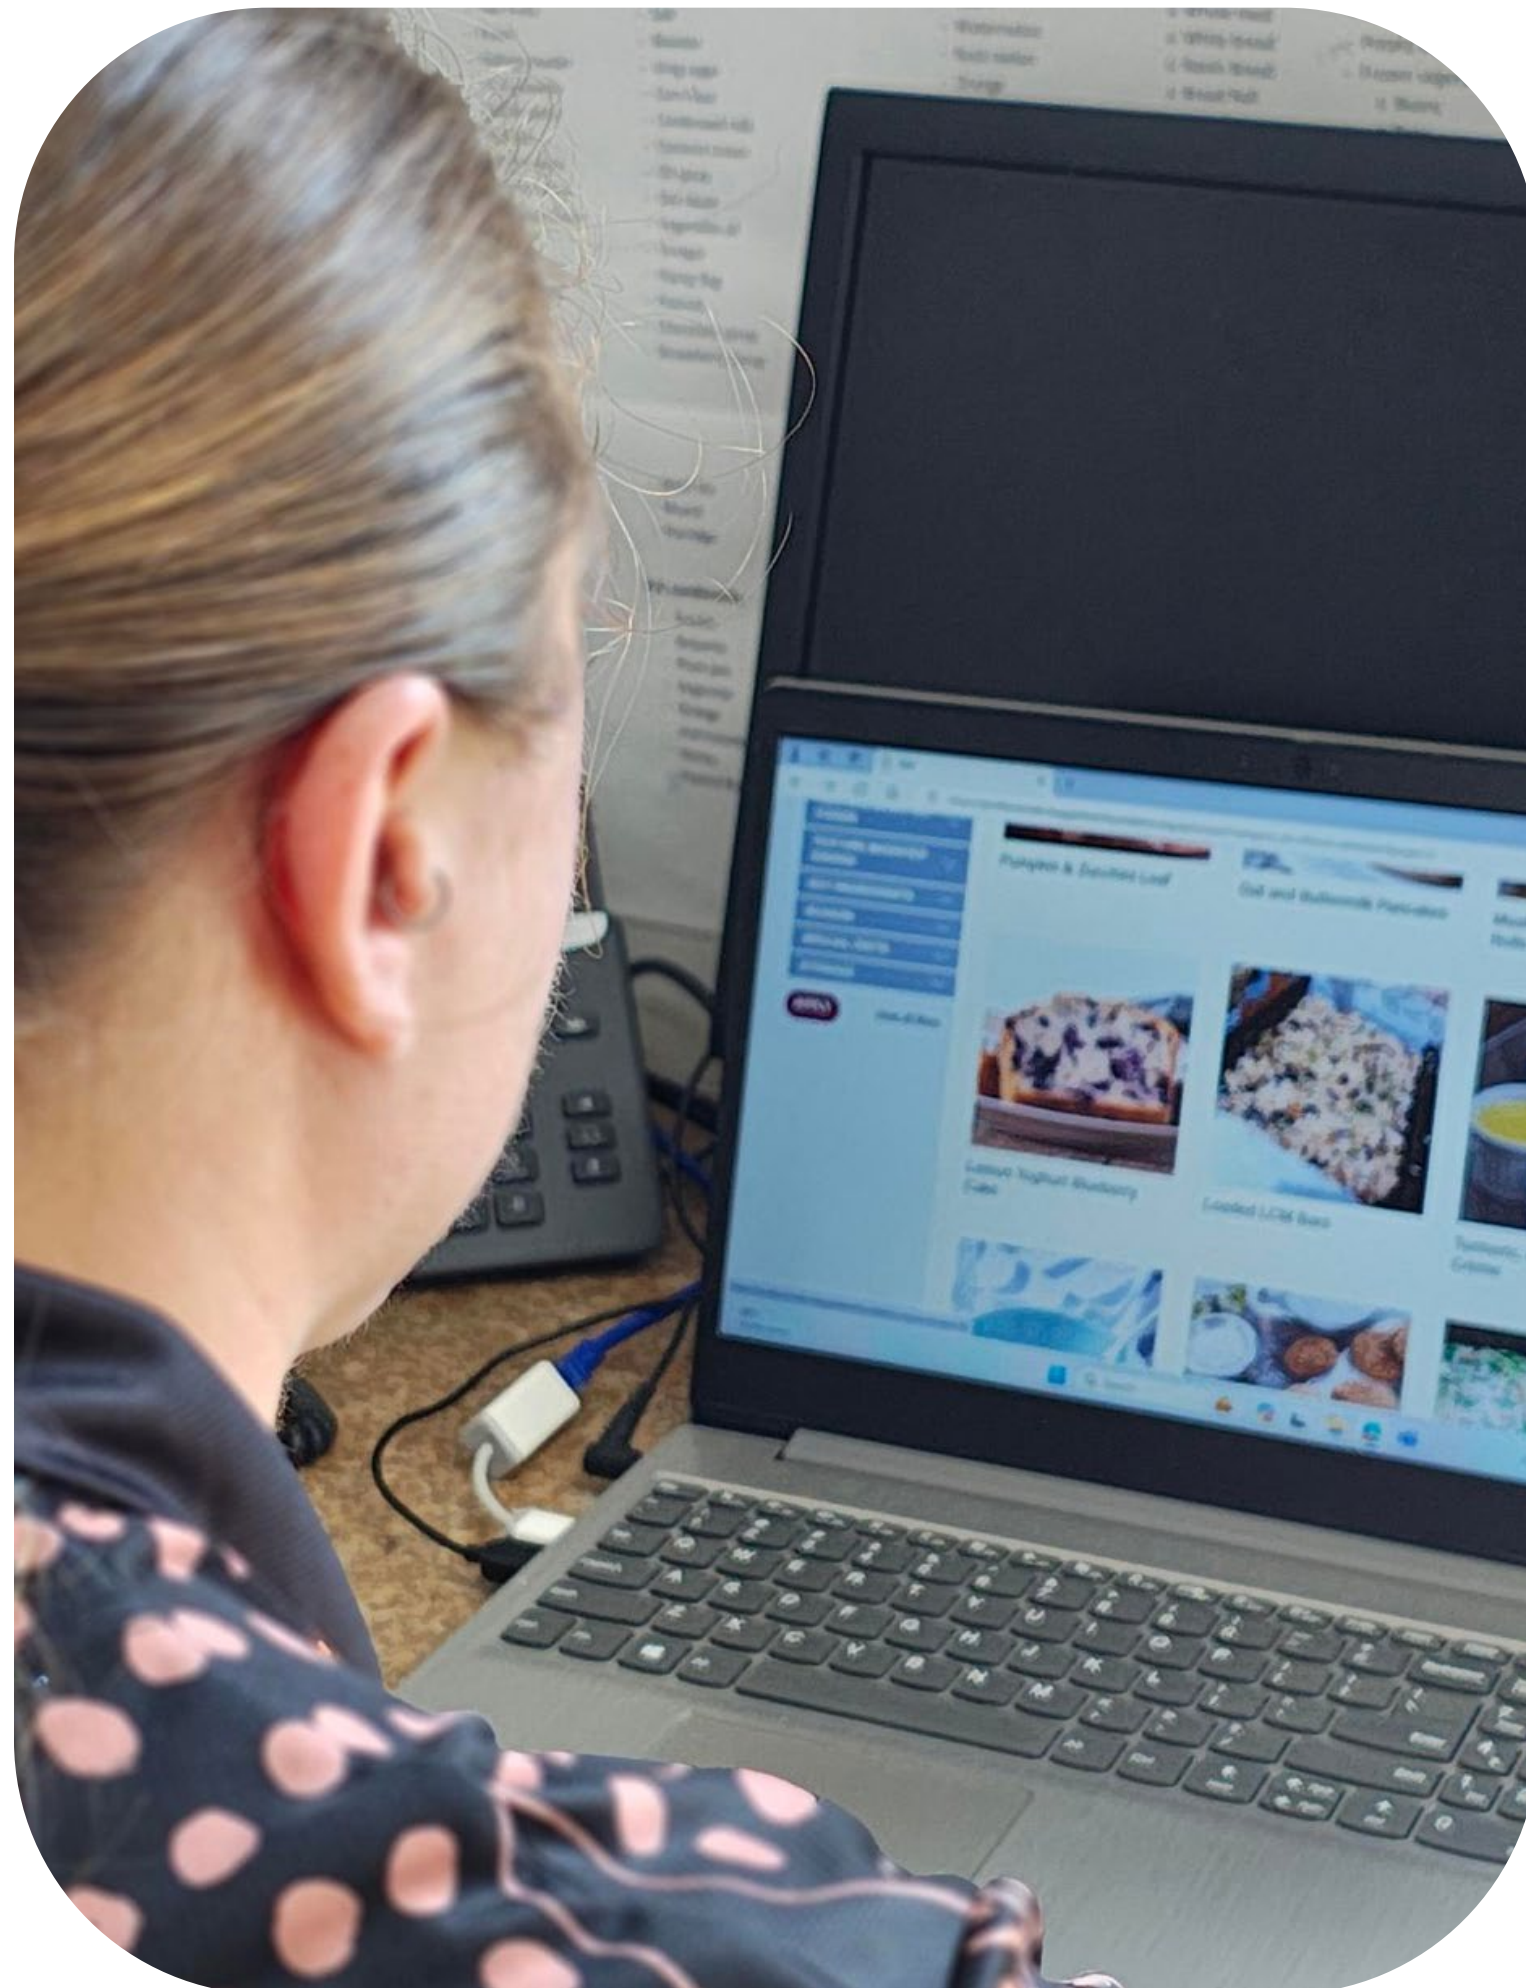

- Innovation focuses on systems and clinical care
- Kitchens still rely on manual processes
- Paper logs, printed recipes, verbal communication
- Expectations have increased: compliance, nutrition, experience
- Systems haven't kept pace

The Real Barrier Isn't Technology

It's confidence and access

- Skilled workforce, but not always digitally trained
- New systems can feel complex or unfamiliar
- Limited access: Wi-Fi, devices, shared tools
- Manual habits remain because they are trusted
- Risk of miscommunication and inefficiencies

“

When kitchen teams have the training and confidence to adapt technology to everyday tasks, innovation becomes not just possible, but truly sustainable.

Michael Nam – Senior Chef Trainer

What Actually Works

Practical ways to build digital confidence

- Step- by- step onboarding into digital tools
- Simple guides and short “how- to” videos
- Peer support within teams (admin, lifestyle staff)
- Better use of existing systems and equipment
- Hands- on mentoring over time

Using Technology to Improve Outcomes

Turning tools into impact

- Reduces admin and duplication
- Improves accuracy and consistency
- Frees up time for cooking and care
- Supports better communication across teams
- Builds connection across the sector

What Comes Next

Making innovation accessible

- More “how- to” video content (skills + digital tasks)
- Simpler, integrated platforms
- Mobile- first access
- Guided onboarding built into systems
- Less reliance on written instructions

Contact Us!

Training@MaggieBeerFoundation.org.au

MaggieBeerFoundation.org.au